COMPLIANCE

This Notice is published under Articles 13 and 14 of the UK and EU General Data Protection Regulation and equivalent transparency requirements in other jurisdictions where PromptHalo Technologies operates. It describes personal data the Company collects when you visit its website, correspond with it, or receive its services, and the rights you have over that data.

DOCUMENT VALIDITY

This document is valid only in its published electronic form in the PromptHalo Technologies policy repository. Printed or locally saved copies are uncontrolled and must be verified against the published version before use. This document is classified Internal and may not be distributed outside PromptHalo Technologies or its authorized clients without the written approval of the Security Officer.

1 Who We Are and How to Reach Us

PromptHalo Technologies (“PromptHalo”, “we”, “us”) provides security and AI advisory and software services to business customers. For the personal data described in this Notice, PromptHalo is the controller unless we say otherwise.

You can reach us about anything in this Notice at privacy@prompthalo.com. We do not have a statutory Data Protection Officer; enquiries are handled by our Security Officer, who is accountable for privacy alongside security.

If you are in the UK or the EEA and are not satisfied with our response, you may complain to your local supervisory authority. That right exists whether you contact us first, and using it does not affect any other right you have.

2 What This Notice Covers

This Notice covers personal data we handle as a controller: information about visitors to our website, people who contact us or receive our communications, and the individual contacts at our business customers.

It does not cover personal data we process on a customer's behalf while delivering services to them. For that data the customer is the controller, and their own privacy notice applies; our role and obligations are set out in the data processing agreement we sign with them. Section 9 explains this further.

It does not cover our own personnel, whose data is handled under a separate internal notice, or third-party websites we link to.

3 What We Collect and Why

The table below sets out what we collect, why, and the legal basis we rely on. Where we rely on legitimate interests, we have considered whether our interest is outweighed by your rights, and you can object at any time.

What we collect	Why we collect it	Legal basis
Pages you view, time on page, referring page, approximate location from IP address, browser and device type	To understand which content is useful and to keep the site working and secure	Consent for analytics cookies; legitimate interests for security and availability
Your name, business email, company, role, and anything you write to us — through our contact form, by email, or in a meeting request	To answer you, to arrange and hold meetings, and to keep a record of what was discussed	Legitimate interests, and steps taken at your request before entering a contract
Business contact details of individuals at	To make relevant business contact about services we think may be	Legitimate interests, with an unsubscribe

prospective customers, from public professional sources or from people who introduce us	useful	link in every message
Contact details and correspondence for individuals at customers, and records of the engagement	To deliver the services, manage the relationship, invoice, and meet our own legal and record-keeping obligations	Performance of a contract, and legal obligation for financial records
Records of security events involving our systems, which may include IP addresses	To detect, investigate and respond to security incidents affecting us or our customers	Legitimate interests, and legal obligation where a breach is notifiable

We do not ask for special category data — health, biometrics, political or religious views and similar — and we ask that you do not send it to us. If you do, we will delete it unless we have a specific reason and basis to keep it.

4 Cookies and Similar Technologies

A cookie is a small file placed on your device. We use a small number, and you control most of them. Non-essential cookies are set only after you agree, and you can change your mind at any time through the cookie settings link in our website footer.

Category	What it does and how long it lasts
Strictly necessary	Keeps the site working — remembers your cookie choices, protects forms against abuse, balances traffic. These are set without consent because the site cannot function without them. Typically expire within twelve months.
Analytics	Tells us which pages are read and where visitors arrive from, in aggregate. Set only with your consent. Typically expire within twelve months, and you can withdraw consent at any time.
Preferences	Remembers choices you have made, such as a language or a dismissed banner. Set only with your consent.

We do not use advertising cookies, we do not build advertising profiles, and we do not allow third parties to track you across other websites from ours.

Most browsers let you block or delete cookies. Blocking strictly necessary cookies may stop parts of the site working. We honor Global Privacy Control signals where your browser sends one.

5 Who We Share It With

We do not sell personal data, and we do not share it for cross-context behavioral advertising. We have never done either.

We share personal data only with service providers who process it on our instructions, and only as far as they need it:

Category of recipient	What they do for us
Cloud infrastructure and hosting	Runs our website and our service
Email, collaboration and file storage	Handles our correspondence and documents
Analytics	Measures website use, where you have consented
Payment and accounting	Processes invoices and keeps financial records
Professional advisers	Provides legal, insurance and audit services when we need them

Each of these is bound by a contract that limits what they may do with the data. A current list of the providers we use to deliver services to customers is available on request.

We may also disclose personal data where the law requires it, to establish or defend legal claims, or in connection with a sale or reorganization of our business. If our business changes hands, we will tell affected customers before their data transfers.

6 Where Your Data Goes

We operate from the United States and use service providers based there and in the European Economic Area. Personal data from the UK or EEA may therefore be transferred outside those areas.

Where it is, we rely on the UK and EU Standard Contractual Clauses, together with the UK International Data Transfer Addendum, and on adequacy decisions where one applies to the country concerned. We also assess whether additional safeguards are needed for a particular transfer. You can ask us for a copy of the mechanism we rely on for a specific transfer.

7 How Long We Keep It

What	How long
Website analytics	Up to fourteen months from collection, then deleted or aggregated
Enquiries that do not become a relationship	Up to twenty-four months from our last contact
Marketing contact details	Until you unsubscribe or ask us to stop, then a minimal suppression record so we do not contact you again
Customer contacts and engagement records	For the engagement and six years afterwards, to meet contractual, tax and professional obligations
Security event records	Thirteen months, unless an investigation requires longer

Where a period ends, we delete or irreversibly anonymize the data. Backups are overwritten on their own cycle, so a deleted record may persist in a backup for a short period afterwards; we do not restore it to active use.

8 Artificial Intelligence and Automated Decisions

We build with AI and use AI tools in our work, so we want to be direct about what that means for your data.

We do not make decisions about you by automated means alone that produce legal effects or similarly significant effects. A named person is accountable for any output we act on.

We do not use personal data from our website, our enquiries or our customers to train or fine-tune AI models, whether our own or a provider's. Where we use a commercial AI service in our work, we use business or enterprise terms under which submissions are not used for provider training.

Where we process customer data with AI as part of delivering a service, we do so only on that customer's documented instructions and under the data processing agreement with them.

9 When We Act for a Customer

Much of what we do involves handling information belonging to our business customers, which may include personal data about their staff or their own customers. In that work we are a processor and the customer is the controller.

That means we act only on their documented instructions, we do not decide what the data is used for, and we do not use it for any purpose of our own. We engage sub-processors only under the terms of our agreement with the customer, keep a current list of them, and give notice before a new one starts processing.

If you believe your personal data is being processed by us on a customer's behalf and you want to exercise a right over it, contact that organization directly — they are the controller and are responsible for answering. If you contact us instead, we will pass your request to them promptly and tell you we have done so.

10 Your Rights

Depending on where you live, you have some or all of the following rights over personal data we hold about you as controller:

Right	What it means
Access	Ask what personal data we hold about you and get a copy
Correction	Ask us to correct data that is wrong or incomplete
Deletion	Ask us to delete data where we no longer need it, or where you withdraw consent
Restriction	Ask us to pause processing while a question about it is resolved

Portability	Ask for data you gave us in a machine-readable form, or sent to another provider
Objection	Object to processing based on legitimate interests, including profiling
Opt out of marketing	Unsubscribe at any time, with no effect on services you receive
Withdraw consent	Withdraw consent for analytics or preference cookies at any time

If you are in California or another US state with comparable law, you also have the right to know what we collect and why, to delete it, to correct it, to opt out of sale or sharing — which does not arise, because we do neither — nor not to be discriminated against for exercising any of these rights.

To exercise a right, email privacy@prompthalo.com. We will acknowledge within a few working days and respond within one month or tell you if we need longer because the request is complex. We may need to verify who you are before we act, and we will not charge you unless a request is manifestly unfounded or excessive. An authorized agent may act for you if you confirm they may.

11 How We Protect It

We encrypt personal data in transit and at rest, restrict access to those who need it for their work, require multi-factor authentication, log and review access to our systems, and screen the people who work with us. Our security program is aligned to the SOC 2 Trust Services Criteria for Security.

No system is perfectly secure. If a personal data breach affects you and is likely to result in a high risk to your rights, we will tell you without undue delay, and we will notify the relevant supervisory authority where the law requires it.

12 Children

Our website and services are intended for business use and are not directed at children. We do not knowingly collect personal data from anyone under 16. If you believe a child has given us personal data, contact us and we will delete it.

13 Changes to This Notice

We update this Notice when what we do changes, and at least once a year. The date at the top shows when it was last updated, and we keep previous versions so you can see what changed. Where a change materially affects how we use personal data we already hold, we will tell affected people directly rather than relying on this page.
